1992-1993

A decade in the computer game business! What a fantastic ride it's been! Electronic Arts started in 1983, the 136th entrant in a crowded and very competitive market. Today Electronic Arts is the number one company in the industry, and the small, dedicated group that started the business has grown to over 500 team members worldwide. Our mission to bring the best entertainment software to the mass market is in full flight.

The innovative talent and vision of our people has been key to EA's success. From the very beginning we recognized the creative genius behind the products and created the concept of "software artists". EA saw the exciting potential of the Sega Genesis, which won us our premier position in the 16 bit video game market. We've recognized the future of IBM-PC gaming with cutting edge features like modem support and super VGA on products like 688 Attack Sub and PGA TOUR Golf. And we've enjoyed partnerships with celebrities like Michael Jordan, John Madden and Chuck Yeager who've worked along with us to create rich and realistic gaming experiences.

Across all platforms, over ten years, and around the world, we have consistently worked to create software of the highest quality and innovation, developing products that appeal not only to the young, but also to adults who are young at heart. For you we've done our best, and you've rewarded us for it. Thanks to you, we have 25 titles which have shipped over 100,000 units each, and 5 which have shipped over 250,000 units each. You've helped us win hundreds of awards, recognizing both individual titles, and the excellence of our organization as a whole.

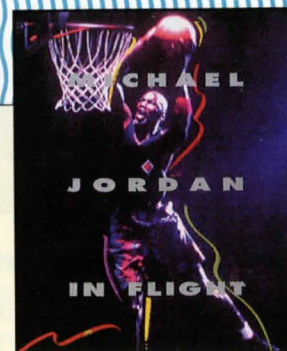

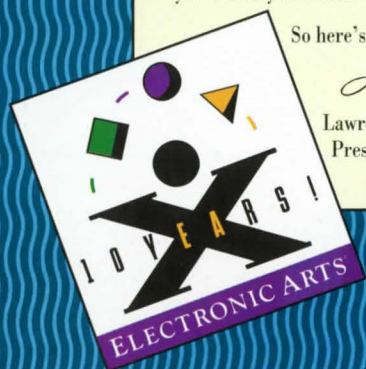

At Electronic Arts, we're proud to symbolize quality and innovation in every facet of the entertainment software business, and we're proud to have you as our customer.

In the future, EA will aggressively address emerging categories like edutainment, infotainment, and interactive movies, and add them to our traditional entertainment products. We'll be broadening our audience, expanding international markets, exploiting new interactive technologies, and creating new strategic alliances, all in our continuing effort to bring you the very best in interactive entertainment.

So here's to you and to another exciting 10 years!
