• The Even More Incredible Machine.™ Genius and junk combine to create convoluted contraptions in a hopelessly addicting, 150-level "erector set" for your computer. Start with a far-out framework of levers, gears and basketballs or search the toolbox for your own gadgetry to set up a chain reaction that will free the cat, exercise the mice or start a shoot-out to burst the balloons.

Bright Star:

• AJ's World of Discovery.™ This unique learning program familiarizes four-to-seven year olds with the computer, and teaches important skills sets. With the guidance of A.J., a friendly on-screen tutor, children engage in fun activities that introduce them to math and language fundamentals, as well as the logic and problem-solving skills that will be so important to them in the future. You can also add advanced math and language lessons as your child grows.

• Ready, Set, Read with Bananas and Jack.™ Your four-to-seven year old will learn early reading skills with the help of Bananas the chimpanzee and Jack the friendly jack-in-the-box. These charming talking tutors will encourage and guide the child through six entertaining reading lessons. Even the youngest children can learn to play independently with the help of their on-screen friends.

• Yobi's Magic Spelling Tricks.™ Yobi, a delightful talking tutor, sends children on an exciting trip up the Spelling River to save lost tribes and helpless animals. Kids must stop along the way to solve fun maze puzzles, where they will learn the 101 words most commonly misspelled by students between the ages of 7 and 10. So much fun, it doesn't seem like learning!

Coktel:

• Goblin 3. Blount is a journalist for the "Goblins News," in this hilarious sequel to Goblins 2. When the going gets tough, Blount changes into something else!

• Inca 2. This follow-up to Inca is a mythical and technological journey into the unknown. Travel with Atahualpa, El Dorado's young son, through four different cultural worlds on a quest to save the Inca Empire from a mysterious and powerful asteroid. You'll have to attain the strength and the wisdom of each "quarter" of the Empire, or all will be lost.

• Lost In Time.™ As Doralice, a clever sleuth, you must outwit a murderous fiend in a quest through hostile jungles, luxurious chateaus, and a past fraught with danger. In your race against – and through – time, you battle evil not with muscle but with intuition, imagination and ingenuity.
